Founder and Lead Consultant, Libertad Chey Ltd

Who I Am

I spent the early part of my career in a Big 4 firm, sitting inside some of Nigeria's largest financial audit engagements. The work was rigorous, and it taught me a great deal. But the longer I did it, the more one thing became clear: we were always arriving after the fact. By the time a problem reached the financial statements, it had already done its damage. The real story was upstream, in processes nobody had mapped, risks nobody had owned, information gaps that made it impossible to see what was coming.

I did not just leave that observation in a workpaper and move on. I went and built the capability to do something about it.

I qualified as a Certified Internal Auditor to master the methodology of looking inside organisations properly, not just at the numbers, but at the systems, controls, and processes that produce them. I became an ISO 31000 Certified Risk Manager because understanding risk at a framework level is what separates finding a problem from actually understanding why it exists and how to prevent it from returning. I qualified as a Chartered Accountant so I could read financial statements with the depth they deserve, and trace what the numbers are really saying back to their source. And I completed a Masters in Information Management because in every audit and every risk engagement, the quality of your information determines the quality of your conclusions. Most people miss things not because they are not looking, but because they are working with incomplete or poorly structured information.

Each qualification was deliberate. Together, they give me something that most advisors in this space do not have: the ability to see an organisation across every layer at once, the process, the risk, the financial exposure, and the information that connects all three.

I built Libertad Chey Ltd because I am relentless about one thing: I hate seeing businesses fail when the failure was preventable. And in my experience, most of them are. The gaps are almost always findable. The risks are almost always manageable. What is usually missing is someone who knows where to look and cares enough to look properly.

What I Do

PROCESS AUDITS

My core work. I examine how your business actually operates, mapping workflows, identifying control gaps, and uncovering the loopholes that create risk or inefficiency. If something is quietly working against your organisation, we will find it.

RISK MANAGEMENT ADVISORY

I design and implement internal control frameworks tailored to your structure and risk appetite, giving you governance foundations that support growth without chaos.

FINANCIAL AUDITS

IFRS-compliant financial examination and assurance, delivered with Big 4 rigour and the care of a founder who is genuinely invested in your results.

COMPLIANCE ADVISORY

From CAMA to sector-specific regulations, I help your organisation do the right thing, not just on paper, but in daily practice.

POLICY AND SOP DEVELOPMENT

Clear, workable policies and standard operating procedures that make risk awareness a natural part of how your team operates.

Why Work With Me

- Nearly six years of experience across Big 4 audit, startup advisory, franchise operations, and corporate risk management.
- Every engagement handled personally by the founder. You get senior expertise from the very first conversation.
- Proven results: clients have seen up to 25% reduction in operational losses, 15% faster process cycle times, and 20% improvement in control testing efficiency.
- Four complementary qualifications, CIA, ACA, ISO 31000, and ISO 9001:2015, built deliberately to cover every layer of organisational risk.
- Trusted with real financial responsibility at organisational level for over eight years.
- The work is not done when the report is delivered. It is done when your organisation is in a stronger position.
